Whoa. We're going to get real deep for a minute, buddy. We're talking about games and the impact they make on our lives here. They're as important to us as our relationships, or maybe even more important. They're not just something we do when we feel like it, in the middle of the day. They're a defining part of who we are, and it's not always obvious when we play them. But it's there. It's in our minds, and sometimes in our bodies. When we play a game. When we play a particular game. Well, we all play the same ones, right? So when we game, it often feels like the same game that we've already played a million times before. Yes, some of them are enjoyable in their own way. But not all. Not all of them are this kind of life-altering. Not all of them are this important. And we don't all get all of them. That's why we have this thing called a physical copy. We'll take it out to see what's inside. We won't get all of them, but we will get some of them. And when we do, we need to stop and think about them. Oh, look at that. We're gonna talk about games and what they mean to us. It's not going to be easy. And we'll be vulnerable. We'll be hurting. There are times when our games get taken away from us. When our games are taken away from us. We have to remember that. Sometimes, they're just things you have to do. But in a lot of cases, they're something more. They're something that we need. We need them to survive. Sometimes, we need them for escape. So why do we game? In what ways are games important to us? When we play a game. These are important questions to ask. And as we explore the answers, we'll have a chance to remember how important these games are to us. We're here. We're talking about games. We have some cool stuff to show you. Just let us introduce ourselves. So what's going on? I'm Joel, and I make games. That's what I do. I'm on a committee, that's what I

Train Simulator is owned by Brian Kibbe (CEO) and Runaway Vision (COO). modchip vendor released a new modchip for Dayz: Armored Kill. To prevent overloading of the BSA site for downloading, they are releasing modchips just for the market of Dayz: Armored Kill to prevent modchips from getting deleted by the modchip removal tool. Please check the BSA for more details. Requested by tarandbox, with thanks to all other comments and screenshots. I decided to make this into a "non-full-size" version, resized to fit the image dimensions, as well as to highlight the scenery on all 7 maps available for Dayz: Armored Kill. This file was made with the DayZ Preloader included (found here: Unzip it from the archive before running. Requested by tch. Since the screenshots are not going to fit in the image dimensions, here is a link to a full size screenshot: thanks to DanielW8 for providing the boxart image, and requested by sticah_wolf_barcode, this is a barcode for the game. The barcode was made by modchip vendor and can be found on the BSA site. New in this version is an updated install file that fixes a few known issues, including crash fixes in 64 bit builds. It is recommended to use this version instead of the version on the Steam store, as you will not be required to reinstall the game after updating. Requested by c9d1549cdd

Check out the official FAQ guide'Big Ger' star dies London: An ageing British actor – who starred as a gangster boss in ITV dramas over more than a decade – has died at the age of 85. Simon Pegg says he and Spooks co-star Richard Armitage's sad demise was "truly shocking" as he paid tribute to the star who died Friday. The Scot, who played Ken Campbell in hit BBC series Spooks from 2006 to 2015, died peacefully at the end of his life after suffering from heart and prostate disease, The Times reports. "He had been ill for some time but it was a truly shocking and unexpected death," Pegg writes in a tribute on his Facebook page. "My friend, Richard Armitage, died just three days ago. We will all miss him so much. Our deepest condolences go to his family." Pegg, who was born on July 8, 1949 in his native Edinburgh, has also starred in films including Run Fatboy Run with superstar David Beckham, Eight Below, Shaun of the Dead, Hot Fuzz and Star Trek.
